

Executive Director - Place

The City of Edinburgh Council

Edinburgh is an outstanding capital city, recognised across the globe as a leader in business, the arts, science and education. Home to the internationally renowned Edinburgh festivals and the Scottish Parliament, it is an exciting city in which to live, work, study, visit and invest.

The City of Edinburgh Council plays a central role in shaping the continued success of Edinburgh as a vibrant, future focused city. Our responsibilities are wide-ranging, from a superb school network through to social work, housing, economic development, parks and green spaces, culture and sport, festivals and events, roads and transport. As the second largest employer in the city with 19,000 employees and a budget of over £1bn, like many local authorities, the Council is facing challenge and opportunity and must continue to adapt to succeed in a changing world.

We are now recruiting for an Executive Director - Place. The post has responsibility for the development and delivery of a range of front line locality based and city-wide services as well as delivery of the overall strategic objectives of the Council. This is a challenging role and will provide an opportunity to help shape the successful future of Scotland's capital city.

Significant experience of leading and managing large scale services (such as travel, transport, roads, planning, housing and environment) is required together with an innovative approach and demonstrable experience of developing and maintaining key strategic relationships with external stakeholders to optimise the delivery of services.
