Childcare services

Delivering excellence

We are committed to delivering quality childcare and follow the Scottish Government's Pre-Birth to Three and Curriculum for Excellence guidelines, providing an enriched programme of learning activities.

Our staff are all registered with the Scottish Social Services Council (SSSC), who raise standards of practice, strengthening and supporting the workforce. We welcome inspections from the Care Inspectorate, Educational Scotland, Environmental Health and the Fire Service. From these audits, we have scored highly and publish quality reports on our website for your piece of mind.

Pre-Birth to Three

Pre-Birth to Three is a Scottish Government programme that recognises the importance of influencing children's early development to ensure positive future outcomes and sets the context for high quality care and education.

Curriculum for Excellence

Learning begins at birth and continues throughout our lives. Scotland's Curriculum for Excellence is designed for young people aged 3-18 to provide them with the knowledge, skills and attributes needed for learning, life and work.

Rachel's story...

Rachel was interested in the Aspiring Women Course, a programme designed to improve confidence and develop new skills, but before she took part, she wanted to make sure her son would be well taken care of.

To support participants, the programme trainers arranged for Jobs & Business Glasgow's Mobile Play Team to be on hand to deliver a wide variety of activities for the children with daily outings throughout the duration of the course. Rachel thoroughly enjoyed the programme and was impressed with the quality of the childcare provided, in particular how friendly, approachable and dedicated the staff were.

Wendy's story...

Watching her youngest daughter graduate from nursery, Wendy was delighted that her four children had all received the same high level of care from Jobs & Business Glasgow's Childcare Services.

As a mum of four, with children aged 4 to 17 years, Wendy was pleased that over the years the staff had remained the same, maintaining a consistent environment for her children and enabling her to build good relationships with staff. In addition, she highlighted the layout of the nursery, with large garden and imaginative play equipment as excellent features.

Wendy's daughter will now progress into Jobs & Business Glasgow's After School Care, further highlighting her confidence in the quality of care provided.
